Hi Lesley - so good to hear from you!!! Hope you're doing well and not having to hide in the mall to get out of the heat.

Call me some time to say hi and catch up... Ex. 6 - Personal Privacy (in case you forgot ;-0
We miss you :) Rona

Hi Jeremy, Rona, and Allison!

Wow, ES&T makes their articles look good, really polished. Thanks for forwarding!

Are you guys planning your trip out to Crater Lake yet? :)

Lesley

Subject: ACS Article Publication Alert for DOI 10.1021/acs.est.7b01498

Dear Dr. Brent Boehlert,

Your article, Climate Change Impacts on Harmful Algal Blooms in U.S. Freshwaters: A Screening-Level Assessment, is now available on the Environmental Science + Technology website. Your article may now be cited using the DOI assigned to it. The DOI assigned to this article is 10.1021/acs.est.7b01498, and is an accepted form of citation. To view your article, please click on the ACS Articles on Request link below:

<http://pubs.acs.org/articlesonrequest/AOR-alsyMW6qsaURXgWhb3SF>

As part of the ACS Articles on Request e-prints service, ACS authors may choose to e-mail or post this link on their website to distribute up to 50 free e-prints of their final published articles to interested colleagues during the first 12 months of publication. After that 12-month period, any author's article may be accessed without restriction via the same author-directed link that appears above. The link seamlessly directs subscribers to the full text version of the article on the ACS Publications website.

To retrieve ACS Articles on Request links for any of your other published ACS articles, visit ACS ChemWorx at <http://www.acschemworx.org> and go to the Publishing Center. Links to your articles will be in the My Published Articles module. You may also find your ACS Articles on Request links on your ACS Paragon Plus Author Dashboard 24 hours after the ASAP Article is posted.

To order high quality reprints of the article for convenient distribution, please click the link below:

<http://pubstore.acs.org/file.aspx?&m=es7b01498>

You may order between 50 and 300 copies, and orders can be shipped globally.

At ACS we recognize that your research is important. That's why ACS strives to maintain one of the fastest submission-to-web publication times in scientific publishing. It's what drives us to provide the highest quality technical editing and production services, to forego page charges or the use of color charges for your manuscript, and to highlight your research via a dynamic ACS Publications web platform that showcases your important work to a global community of scientists.

Please note that ACS also offers a Citation Alert feature. Registering for an ACS ID allows you to track all citations to your paper, lets you set your ASAP (As Soon As Publishable) and TOC (Table of Contents) Alert preferences, and gives you the option of maintaining a list of Favorite Articles and Saved Searches.

Thank you for choosing to publish with ACS Journals.
